fisher and paykel washing machine manualClear all24 results per page48 results per page96 results per page SMB2Greater Melbourne (Inner), VICWashSmart WA8560G1 (8.5kg)Bought this Nov 2019 to replace a 15 year old Excellence model. First noticed the drain pump is noisy, about 70db (almost as noisy as a lawn mower) but support said that was normal and the machine isn't faulty. Couldn't adjust the autofill because it just totally underfills (added towels until the totally over the agitator and still only filled to medium), so autofill isn't trustworthy (autofill doesn't wash the clothes clean and leaves laundry powder on the clothes (if placed on the clothes or in the tub) in the wash; autofill doesn't use enou...Read moreugh water to suspend the lint so clothes are full of lint, but support said autofill is not suitable for all wash types as it for water saving, and I'm to read the manual again. As for the lint, I bought an OEM centre column lint filter and it solves the lint problem when using Low-Med or above water levels. The inward water temperature control on this model is downgraded to on/off solenoids rather than the Excellence's varying inlet water mixing to temperature, which means temperature sensitive clothes can get blanched by hot water so I have to fill the tub first then add the clothes. The lid locks once the wash cycle is done and moving on to the rinse or unless there's a soak when the lid locks at the start; the lid lock is very annoying when wanting to add or remove clothes during the post wash, the Excellence didn't have a lid lock. But then add the timer reset problem every time Pause is selected and then the lower granulation of wash cycle progress selection (when compared with Excellence) where this machine's cycles restart from their beginning when resuming from a pause; not happy about this at all especially if I want to add clothes in the final rinse. Finally agitation speed, a default wash program without enough water has the agitator playing with the clothes and doesn't wash them; this is supposedly listed auto wash load sensing and I've had clothes not wash at all in this case; so found that if I wait for the water fill then press the power button twice and re-select my wash program etc then the agitator give a vigorous wash that actually washes the clothes clean even with lower water levels. Three years on, I've concluded it's a cheap washer with a high price tag; the good news is I've figured out how to make it wash clothes clean; but my previous F&P Excellence model set the expectation bar high from F&P. If the marketing and F&P support were honest back in 2019 with this new model I'd never have bought it or would have returned it back then. My next washer is unlikely to be F&P because of this really bad experience unless F&P can prove the newer models are actually better than the F&P Excellence.Purchased in November 2019 at Appliances Online for $779.Build QualityValue for MoneySee all answersSimilar opinion? We are a retired couple, so not that much involved. However for the last 6-12 months it has been going off balance more and more, with less and less in it. In the end it just didn't matter what was in it, a cycle just never completed.Of course when I googled the machine I found that it is notorious for its balance rods failing anywhere from 2 years old onwards, based I guess on the amount of use it gets. Luckily we had b...Read moreought an extended warranty and after going through the hoops which that involved, we finally got Fisher and Paykel to sort a repair guy in our area. This happened pretty fast TBH, and the guy actually took about 15 minutes to remove the old balance rods and replace them with new ones. He confirms to me that these machines are well known for this failure of the balancing rods. The cost for the service call ($75+) and replacement rods ($110-120) is around $200, and was covered by our extended warranty. I was very annoyed with F&P customer service at first contact as their attitude was "not really our problem" but once I realised I had an extended warranty I was a bit more "assertive" with them and got action fairly quickly. On balance can I recommend this washer? The bottom line is that it is selling for around $1000 at present and if you can build in the likelihood that it will need this major repair in 2-4 years at a cost of $200 then the decision will be yours. I just wish I'd known this hassle was ahead when I bought it, because I'd probably have made a different decision. This is a pretty major failure in reliability for which F&P was once renowned. Our previous machine a F&P Smartdrive unit gave hassle free service for around 23 years. I guess that isn't the case any more and I'll never again make a purchase on the basis of F&P's reputation for reliability and good customer service.Purchased in August 2017 at Betta Home Living for $747.Build QualityValue for MoneySee all answersSimilar opinion? In the meantime F&P probably expected me to go to the nearby river to do my washing. I also found out that F&P has known about this issue as they have now re-engineered a completely different board and superseded the faulty one that seems to have a CLASS issue. I was very disappointed with F&P to say the least and never ever will I buy this brand, ever again. They have digressed from being a once-upon-a-time reputable company with reputable products to manufacturing cheap and junky products unfortunately. I am certainly not a happy customer. Needing a replacement (there's just the two of us at home now) we decided on the Fisher & Paykel for various reasons.Now, we've had this washer since July, 2020 (8 months), so I've given it a good run during this time to find what I like & don't like about this washer.FIRSTLY, THE LIKES - it's very easy to operate, the soft close lid & ours is very quiet. Doesn't use a lot of water (I'll also get to that in the negative sec...Read moretan as well). SECONDLY, THE THINGS I AM NOT HAPPY with (& some of these things could very, very easily be fixed by Fisher & Paykel). 1. It's supposed to be a machine that's economical with water usage. If you use the 'auto fill', where the machine determines the amount of water it needs, it barely covers the clothes. The downside of this is that it really does not use enough water to allow the clothes to move freely & wash properly. Also, dark items come out covered with lint. (I've just read from another review that you need to buy a separate lint filter. This should come with the machine when you purchase it!) I am still using the same washing powder that I have used for years, so I know that isn't a contributing factor. 2. If you prefer, there are 3 water levels that you can set yourself, depending on the size of the load. Low, medium & high. You can't adjust water level between these as they are pre-set. Low level is too low (practically no water at all), & medium isn't much less than high. I would have thought that medium would be about half way up the drum, but it isn't. 3. There is a buzzer that sounds when the cycle is finished. You can hardly hear it. Needs to be made louder or adjustable depending on other household noise. 4. The hoses supplied to install the machine aren't nearly long enough. Luckily we checked this out in the shop & purchased longer ones ready for when the machine was going to be installed. My overall opinion - very, very disappointed with this machine. I now have to make sure I spray any spots on clothes prior to putting in machine or chances are they will have to be washed again, so this machine is effectively making work for me. Hence my score of 2/5 for value for money, as it's not really doing the job I bought it for. Would I recommend it - probably not.Purchased in July 2020 for $945.Build QualityValue for MoneySee all answersSimilar opinion? Write a review on ProductReview.com.au!
